

Silicon Photomultipliers - Properties and Perspectives

Jelena Ninkovic (MPI, HLL)

September 21, 2010

Abstract

A novel type of avalanche photodetector with Geiger mode operation, known as Silicon PhotoMultiplier (SiPM) represents an interesting advance in photodetection and could soon be an alternative to traditional PMTs in many applications. The state of the art of the SiPMs - their main properties and problems will be discussed.